Section 1. Purpose

1.0 The Business Committee of the Confederated Tribes of the Chehalis Reservation finds that construction activities inherently pose a threat to the health and safety of Reservation residents. By their nature, excavations and building of structures contain a multitude of hazards potentially resulting in injury or death to workers and even bystanders. These hazards can only be eliminated by the adoption and enforcement of regulations designed to protect health and safety. Accordingly, the Tribe hereby exercises its inherent authority to minimize the occurrence of injuries and harm to persons engaged in construction activities within the Reservation and any off-reservation lands that the Tribe owns and manages.

2.0 The Business Committee of the Confederated Tribes of the Chehalis Reservation further desires to define a standard of safety throughout all operations of the tribal government and its enterprises and to ensure that no employee and/or associate is required to work under any conditions that are hazardous or unsanitary and to prevent work-related injuries or illnesses.

Such request shall be submitted in writing to either the Director or the Inspector. The request shall describe with specificity the reasons why the employee believes that there is a violation of safety standards. The Tribal Court shall hold a hearing and issue its decision within 3 days of the Tribe’s response to a motion for a stay pending appeal.

There are three kinds of variances, permanent, temporary and owner-occupied. Requests for a variance must provide the information necessary for the Director to make the required findings.

15.01 To grant a permanent variance, the Director must find that the proposed variance provides for health and safety conditions that are no less protective than those called for by Chehalis Tribe safety standards and that employees have been notified of the request.
15.02 To grant a temporary variance, the Director must find that the employer is unable to immediately comply with Chehalis Tribe safety standards, but that the employer has an effective program for coming into compliance within a reasonable amount of time. The Director may issue a time-limited interim order pending the decision on the temporary variance request.

15.1 Variances applicable to construction activities by owners of owner-occupied residences shall be addressed through the Tribe’s building permit process.
